by John Curry (j.curry@bathspa.ac.uk)

Subject / Theme:	This was running the game using American Army's 6mm micro tank battle rules. It was an open game using miniatures; a lecture in the form of a game about the war in 2022 at a tactical level
Type:	Facilitated boardgame; simple rules, room for exploration of ideas outside initial options available to players.
No. of participants:	The game needed 1 to 8 players, with the Ukrainian side being played by the umpires if there are less players.
Duration:	The game took 1.5 hours, including discussion.
Design Notes:	The key learning point from the game is many playing were largely unaware of Russian tactics and how the war was being fought out in 2022 at company level. We also discussed how the Russian capabilities were overestimated prior to the actual war. For more information about the game, see https://wargamingco.blogspot.com/2023/09/ukraine-2023-fort-leavenworths-tactical.html
